

Community Arts!

Ludington is emerging as a community that supports a wonderful array of cultural events.

The Ludington Area Center for the Arts is really the hub of this growth. Housed in the historic downtown building that was once the United Methodist Church, it is the venue for speakers, concerts, writer's forums, theater presentations, and monthly films. A gift shop is now open, and future plans include dance and art studios. Generations to come will appreciate the efforts of today's residents for creating a place where literary, visual, and performing arts come alive.

It's so enjoyable to spend an hour or two at Waterfront Park, admiring the view and the nine marvelous sculptures which depict our maritime, farming, and lumbering heritage.

The facades of many businesses have become a kind of canvas for beautifully painted murals. Each one tells a story of local historical significance. Eleven murals are downtown, presenting an interesting walking tour to view each one.

Photos by Todd & Brad Reed

West Shore Community College provides us with the Performing Arts Series, plus their very own symphony orchestra, band and choir. Throughout the year, residents and students from surrounding communities showcase their various theatrical and musical talents.

Ludington hosts many fine art shows and craft fairs where you can shop for unique, handmade items. Browse our artist galleries which showcase the offerings of some amazing local talent.

In recent years, Ludington has become a destination for photographers and a venue for photo workshops where photographers learn to fully capture the dramatic natural beauty of the area.

Come enjoy the visual, musical, and performing arts in this beautiful place we call Ludington. 🌟

LudingtonArts.com